Charlotte Dawson is one of the most honest, self deprecating female personalities in Australian media circles. She has a great profile and loyal following from the hit TV show Australia's Next Top Model and Celebrity Apprentice, as well as from her days as a fashion journalist and model. She's constantly talked about - whether it's for her honesty about botox, her broken marriage to Olympic swimmer Scott Miller, her battle with depression, or her constant presence on the red carpet. In true Charlotte style, her story is told with wit, humor, and a touch of glamour. The book tackles many harsh truths, but is ultimately an uplifting story of triumph over adversity.

Heartbreaking Insight

By Simon VDS

Charlotte Dawson's wit and humour leap from the pages, deftly captured by Jo Thornley and carry us through the pain, the wonder, the glitz and the gritty reality of Charlotte's world. It gut wrenching what assails this woman, the highs are mountainous and the lows are dark, and through it all you come to glimpse the human behind the smiling face on TV and magazine covers. Whatever your opinion of her, Charlotte is a real person, assaulted by the very media world she works in, whilst she climbs the slippery slope of celebrity. She does falter, she does fall and doesn't hide the fact she did. The honesty of her story is told with laugh out loud sarcasm and wit, and is a great read. Five stars.
