NAUGHT FOR YOUR COMFORT: A SOUTH AFRICAN TESTIMONY OF HOPE BY TREVOR HUDDLESTON PDF

Trevor Huddleston was a towering figure in South Africa's struggle against apartheid. Often a lonely voice, he describes his experiences as a leading bishop and an influential Church leader in South Africa. Archbishop Tutu sees him as one of the strongest critics of the oppressive regime. The book follows Huddleston's time in the shanty towns of South Africa and on the protest lines as the church and state clash over politics.

One of my favorite books about the struggle against apartheid

By Martin Klammer

One of my favorite books about the struggle against apartheid, told beautifully and movingly by a humble Christian minister passionately committed to justice. It is also a vital record of the tragedy of Sophiatown, the lively integrated suburb of Johannesburg that was bulldozed under by the apartheid regime for white resettlement in the late 1950s. (Blacks were 'resettled' in Meadowlands [Soweto] and elsewhere.)

My one concern/complaint about THIS version is that I wonder about copyright violation of Huddleston's original book: the statue cited at the front of this text refers to legal reproduction of "an original work published before 1923," but this book was published by Doubleday & Co. in 1956. What gives, I wonder? Also, in my copy pages 191-192 are missing. Nabu Public Domain Reprints: what's up? Father Trevor Huddleston deserves better.

Of historical interest

By Alan Venable

This book was useful to me in filling out my knowledge of how apartheid became more severe in the 1950s and particularly in events surrounding the destruction of black Sophiatown in Johannesburg South Africa. The author, Anglican priest Trevor Huddleston, was a real hero among whites in South Africa at the time, and his story is inspiring. (I was privileged to meet him in 1967 when he headed a rural mission in Tanzania. Unfortunately I had no real idea as yet about his prior heroic role in South Africa.) But the book was very much intended as a message to its time, and there are better ways into the broader subject of the history of apartheid or the life of legendary Sophiatown. You might start with a biography of Mandela or other leading African figures in the struggle.
