Excellent Collection!

By MommaCat

ODDITIES AND OTHERS is a mixed bag collection by one of my favorite and perhaps oddest authors, Ed Lorn. I say it's mixed because it contains short stories both old and new. So, some you may have in one form or another, but for the most part, these are new. They all have E's style (if you read THE SCARE ROWS) you know what I mean. If you haven't, it's in here. Read it. Be scared. Never eat corn again. '

If you haven't read Lorn before, he can be shocking. He can be extreme. Check him out with a look inside, then buy everything. I love this dude.

Great collection of shorts

By Thomas Strömquist

Edward Lorn's aptly named second collection has a number of odd, wild, thrilling, bit nauseating and funny stories. I even love the cover!

If you haven't made the acquaintance of this brilliant writer, this is a great introduction I think. Often not for the squeamish, Lorn writes effective stories with superb characterization and with a narration that is nicely flowing and always rings true.

It is also a great deal if you're behind in the output, since it's got Full Moon Over Cedar Hill, Trailer & Crawl!

The only reason to why this slips a single notch in my rating is that a few of the 14 stories does not engage all the way. The main reason for that is that I felt them too short.

'No Such Thing' is a science/sci-fi story with great feel to it. Funny and chilling and very reminiscent of other works of which I can name none - so my guess is that it is more atmosphere and mood than anything else. Genetics and cloning and the discovery that maybe having a black soul (or a Head like a hole?) is quite possibly not the absolute worst.

'Now I've Seen Everything': Now I've read everything. Weird and short.

'Cinder Block': Bay's End story! This I felt Joyce Carol Oates in. Yes, really.

'Blah-Doop': A quick rest-room stop. No complaints about this straightforward piece.

'The Morning Dew': Brilliant short which does show how much you can accomplish in the short format if you are a good author! Paints a very live and vivid picture despite the length. Loved this one!

'The Red Door on Market Street': Another short one; evil draws evil doers. I think. You may describe it differently.

'Full Moon Over Cedar Hill': Lovely piece of horror and karma. A terminal ward and terminally inclined intruders.

'Got Your Goat': Short and straight. Classic horror twist in an unorthodox setting.

'The Scare Rows': An evil carnival comes to Bay's End! Probably my favorite of the lot.

'On The Rails': Superb "Twilight Zone"-chiller. Classical ingredients. Loved this one too!

'Trailer': A creature feature; very well told and very good.

'Just Short of Paradise': Did not see that (rapture) coming!

'What Comes Around Goes Around': This title says a lot really; who does not love a story of deserved comeuppance?

'Crawl': I recently read and reviewed this great, a bit longer than the rest, story. I was particularly fond of the great opening and backstory and the twist I felt when I was cast headlong into first Spielberg's "Duel" and then further into surreal territories.

A great wee collection of shorts!

By Scarlet Aingeal

I received a free copy of Others & Oddities in return for an honest review.

Others & Oddities was a great wee collection of shorts. Edward Lorn is one of my fav authors when it comes to short stories, he always manages to pack so much into them and creates the feel of a complete novel condensed down to a few pages. The stories are all very different and full of the wit, scares and characterisation that I have come to really enjoy in this authors work.

If I had to name a favourite from the collection it would have to be Just Short of Paradise. I really liked the message behind this one.

I rated each story as I read it, that way you can get a better idea of the content. No spoilers though!

1 - No Such Thing: This is why you shouldn't mess with mother nature! - 4 stars.

2- Now I've Seen Everything: Lol this guy shoulda been named Walley. - 3 stars.

3 - Cinder Block: Love hurts in more ways than one. - 3 stars.

4 - Blah-Doop: That's one well trained man, flushing even after all that lol. - 4 stars.

5 - The Morning Dew: I enjoyed this one but I wasn't a fan of the latter part. - 2.5 stars.

6 - The Red Door Market Street: Loved this, was very clever and thought provoking. - 5 stars.

7 - Full Moon Over Cedar Hill: I had read this previously and it actually made my favourites of 2014 shelf. Very good werewolf story! - 5 stars.

8 - Got Your Goat: My gran bred goats on her farm so I can assure you that yes, goats will eat almost anything. - 3 stars.

9 - The Scare Rows: I have read this one previously and it's one of my favourite shorts by this author. It tickles my sense of humour for personal reasons. - 5 stars.

10 - On The Rails: This ones too short really to say anything without giving something away. - 3 stars.

11 - Trailer: I really liked the cold atmosphere of this one and how you're thrown immediately into the deep end. - 4 stars.

12 - Just Short of Paradise: I love the message behind this one. Totally fitting with all the judging and hate that's going around right now on certain topics. - 5 stars.

13 - What Comes Around Goes Around: That was horrible to read, granted the ending was great and totally made it worth it, but the sbuject matter is heartbreaking. - 5 stars.

14 - Crawl: That's gotta hurt - 4 stars.
